The Property

The Basley is a very pretty semi-detached period cottage situated within a very pleasant and peaceful position in the Cotswold village of Leighterton sitting beside the picturesque village duck pond adjoining quiet leafy country lanes and overlooking fields. The cottage has an abundance of charm and character throughout featuring exposed timber beams and a unique conical timber staircase rising through the three storeys. The accommodation extends in all to 1,006 sq.ft. and requires general updating offering the new owners great scope to put their stamp on this idyllic country cottage.

The cottage has a lovely approach through its delightful garden leading to a porch. The porch adjoins the kitchen which boasts impressive high-vaulted ceilings and a charming curved arch window at the focal point. An inner hallway has a side access in from the lane and a Saniflo WC off. The reception room is dual-aspect including

French doors flowing out to the garden, while a wood-burning stove creates a cosy atmosphere. On the first floor, there are two bedrooms comprising a double and a small single suited for an office or nursery. There is a shower room located on the first floor. The main bedroom occupies the entire top floor and is a particular feature boasting a beautiful beamed ceiling. The bedroom suite layout incorporates a dressing area, fitted storage, and an en-suite bathroom.

A five-bar gate opens to an off-street parking area located at the foot of the garden where there are outstanding far-reaching views over the adjoining countryside. The south-east garden is a quintessential 'cottage garden' vibrant with well-stocked flower beds bordering lawns. Within the garden there is a timber shed and a summerhouse.
